Thank you so much Lao shi Zhang! I wish you could be my teacher through the entire course but I wish the best in New York. You are a very good teacher, keep it up!

Instructor was very helpful, understanding, clear, and motivated

CHIN 104 Elementary Chinese I 24029

Smaller class size helped me to learn the language better because there was an addition of one on one time to really work on the language.

Before saying anything, I just want to note that my instructor for this course was Wang Hui, not Kevin Zhang. Seems the wrong instructor was listed. Anything written about the instructor will therefore pertain to Wang Hui, not Kevin Zhang. The emphasis on speaking in this course was incredibly helpful to me. For me speaking is the most difficult part of Chinese, so that strong emphasis was something I found extremely useful to me in learning. I still struggle a bit with speaking but without as much practice and feedback as I've been able to get in class, I think I would have fallen very far behind. The instructor is also very insistent that when we speak we do it pretty much exactly right, which I appreciate a lot. I don't feel like I'm ever getting let off with "close enough" when I'm mispronouncing. I feel that even with a slight mispronunciation the teacher is willing to really stop to correct me, which helps prevent me from falling into bad habits and becoming complacent with just "okay" pronunciation. Having an extremely small class helps with this too because it allows the instructor to spend more time on each student and gives us each more time to practice speaking and receive feedback. Since I'm hoping to eventually become fluent in Chinese, this style of teaching is a blessing for me.

What aspects of the class need improvement? 2

CHIN 108 Elementary Chinese II 43700

None!

CHIN 104 Elementary Chinese I 24029

Not much. These lab periods were very speech and pronunciation focused and I found that as I spoke I was both improving and identifying problems with my pronunciations and also learning the grammar and sentence structures of the unit since what I was saying pertained to that.
